ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for primary link packet control using a traffic flow template. Primary link traffic flow template filter parameters can be set at a packet control module. Incoming packet data can be compared against the primary link traffic flow template filter parameters. How the incoming packet data is sent to the wireless device over the primary link can be controlled based on comparing incoming packet data against the primary link traffic flow template filter parameters.